Recommended changes to Personnel Policy #22-Professional Development

Policy #22 Professional Development currently states that faculty and staff are encouraged and may be required to improve their competence through additional studies. The use of the words “encouraged” and “may be required” could lead one to think that professional development is optional.

However, we are required to provide evidence of ongoing professional development of faculty. It is not optional; therefore, the following recommended language to the policy is suggested to outline the requirement for professional development for both faculty and staff. The recommended language also includes a definition of professional development.

In the attached document the recommended statements to be added to the policy are highlighted in red text. The section about Faculty Upgrade Funds has been deleted as the state has cut these funds and they are no longer available. A copy of the current policy is also attached for your review.

Recommended Policy Changes

22. Professional Development

Professional development refers to the ongoing commitment to ensure that employees' skills and their ability to perform their jobs are always relevant and up to date. For faculty it includes a comprehensive and sustained approach to improving instructors' effectiveness in raising student achievement. For staff it is a comprehensive and sustained approach to increasing their knowledge and skills to enhance the quality of their performance.

Faculty and staff are required to engage in at least twenty (20) clock hours annually of professional development activities. Professional growth may be enhanced through a variety of activities including, but not limited to, the following:

- Participation in graduate work or other course work.
- Participation in relevant workshops, conferences, webinars, and professional meetings.
- Participation in relevant return-to-industry experiences.
- Other appropriate activities.

The opportunity to permit such activities may include educational leave with or without pay and/or financial assistance (example: NCCCS Faculty Upgrade Funds), if available. The conditions for educational leave with pay are set forth in Section 206.10 and those for leave without pay in Section 206.11.

It is the responsibility of each employee to pursue and fund his/her professional development activities. However, when funds are available, the College may elect to supplement employee professional development activities. Full-time employees may enroll in one class each semester offered by the College and have the tuition waived.

When applicable, the College will provide professional development activities on campus for faculty and staff. The President shall appoint a Professional Development Committee to identify professional development opportunities and plan professional develop activities on campus.

Academic Affairs

Lean Six Sigma Train the Trainer Program

Congratulations are extended to Larry Crisafulli, Continuing Education’s Business and Industry Coordinator/Instructor, who has been selected to participate in the Lean Six Sigma Train the Trainer Program. Through collaborative efforts of the North Carolina Community College System and North Carolina State University’s College of Textiles, a model for uniform, state-wide Lean Six Sigma Certification Program has been developed. This collaboration is in direct response to the need for a standardized curriculum to provide Lean Six Sigma certification training for workforce and economic development in North Carolina. This training model will ensure that we have certified instructors to provide a high-quality, consistent Lean Six Sigma curriculum and training methodology across the State of North Carolina. The selection process was very competitive and only a handful of people were chosen from all across the state. Usually the tuition is about $10,000 per person. This is a wonderful opportunity for HCC and the businesses and industries that we serve. Larry will be able to provide the training and we will not have to contract with others.

Vice President Holmes provided an update on the Roanoke Valley Early College. She advised that the students had completed their placement tests and were preparing to take their first college course during the spring semester.
